OBERLY ON IND AN NEEDS

DUTIES OF SUPERINTENDENTS.

The Commissioner of Indian Affairs Discusses the Best Thing to be Done for the Nation's Wards.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 -- Commissioner of Indian Affairs Oberly in his annual report discusses the act of June 29, 1888, by which the authority and duties of superintendents of Indian schools were extended. The commissioner reaches the conclusion that the most natural, economical and effective administration of Indian schools will be secured by enlarging the prerogatives of a superintendent-first, by placing under his immediate charge all matters connected with all branches of Indian education, instead of restricting him to two lines of work in connection with but one class of schools; and second, by providing that he shall per-form all the official functions necessary in the discharge of such enlarged duties through the bureau of Indian affairs, under which arrangement the commissioner of Indian affairs may place at the disposal of the superintendent the entire official ma-chinery of the bureau by the use of which nearly all business in relation to Indian Indian affairs may place at the disposal of the superintendent the entire official machinery of the bureau by the use of which nearly all business in relation to Indian schools is, and must be, transacted. The commissioner recommends some important changes in the methods of making purchases of Indian supplies. A more satisfactory method, he thinks would be for the Indian bureau to submit to bidders a standard sample of each and every article, instead of having submitted to it a large variety of samples of each article. Thus the question of price would alone have to be considered in awarding contracts, and nothing, more would be required of the commissioner than the making of the award to the lowest bidder. To make the inspection of such goods as blankets, clothing, etc., infallible, accurately adjusted machinery and other appliances for testing the strength of fabrics could and should be supplied. The commissioner advises the extension of the civil service law to the Indian service, and says he would advise this extension be made immediately, if he were not fearful, if taken now, it would be robbed of much of its effectiveness by being attributed to partisan motives.

In conclusion the commissioner says the Indian is commencing to appreciate the fact that he must become civilized, must, as he expresses it, "learn the white man's way" or perish from the face of the earth. He should be taught how to work, and all the schools that are opened for his chidren should be schools in which they will be instructed in the use of agricultural and mechanical implements, and the Indian should be taught not only how to work but also that it is his duty to work for the degrading communism of the terrible reservation system gives to the individual no incentive to labor, but puts a premium on idleness, and makes it fashionable
